

Service Delivery Channels

- "Service delivery channels" in service marketing refers to the various methods or platforms through which a company interacts with its customers to deliver a service, including options like phone calls, email, live chat, social media, website self-service portals, or in-person interactions at a physical location; essentially, it's how customers access and receive the service from a business.

